Dear Hiring Manager,

With a strong interest in contributing to your development team, I am writing to express my candidacy for the position under consideration. I am a Full Stack Developer with over 4 years of experience building robust and scalable web applications, working end-to-end on projects across diverse industries.

Throughout my professional career, I have developed expertise in modern front-end frameworks such as React, Vue, and Angular, while also working with Node.js, Python, and .NET for back-end development. This full-stack experience allows me to understand the complete lifecycle of a project, from architecture design to implementation and production maintenance.

Beyond technical competencies, I have hands-on experience with CI/CD pipelines, unit testing, performance optimization, and team mentoring. I have led legacy application refactoring, implemented code quality practices, and collaborated with cross-functional teams, always focused on delivering real value to the client.

I am actively seeking new opportunities where I can apply my experience and continue to grow professionally. I believe that my degree in Software Engineering from the Federal Institute of Amazonas, combined with my experience in technology companies, enables me to make a meaningful contribution to the challenges your team faces. I am available for an interview, where I can elaborate on my experiences and how I can add value to your organization.

Sincerely,

Lucas Castro
